

A black and white photograph of an archaeological site. A large, irregularly shaped rock is the central focus, partially embedded in dark, textured soil. To the left of the rock is a vertical scale bar with alternating black and white segments. Below the rock is a horizontal scale bar with similar segments. A small black rectangular label with white text is positioned between the two scale bars. In the upper right corner, a portion of a light-colored, possibly metallic, object is visible.
